Company Profile

Shandong Medakai Hydraulic Machinery Co., Ltd., located in Linyi City, Shandong Province, is a integrated industrial and trading enterprise specializing in the manufacturing of various hydraulic cylinders.

Supported by advanced production technology, the company is fully capable of meeting diverse customer needs. We possess standardized production facilities and dedicated production lines, with our main products including hydraulic cylinders specifically designed for tractors, harvesters, and plant protection machinery. We also accept customized orders for various special-purpose hydraulic cylinders.

Quality has always been the cornerstone of our development. From strict raw material selection and precision processing of cylinder tubes to sealing performance tests and final product inspections, every production step strictly adheres to the ISO9001 international quality management system, ensuring full traceability throughout the process. This comprehensive quality control system guarantees consistent stability in pressure resistance, sealing performance, and service life of our hydraulic cylinders, safeguarding product quality from the source.

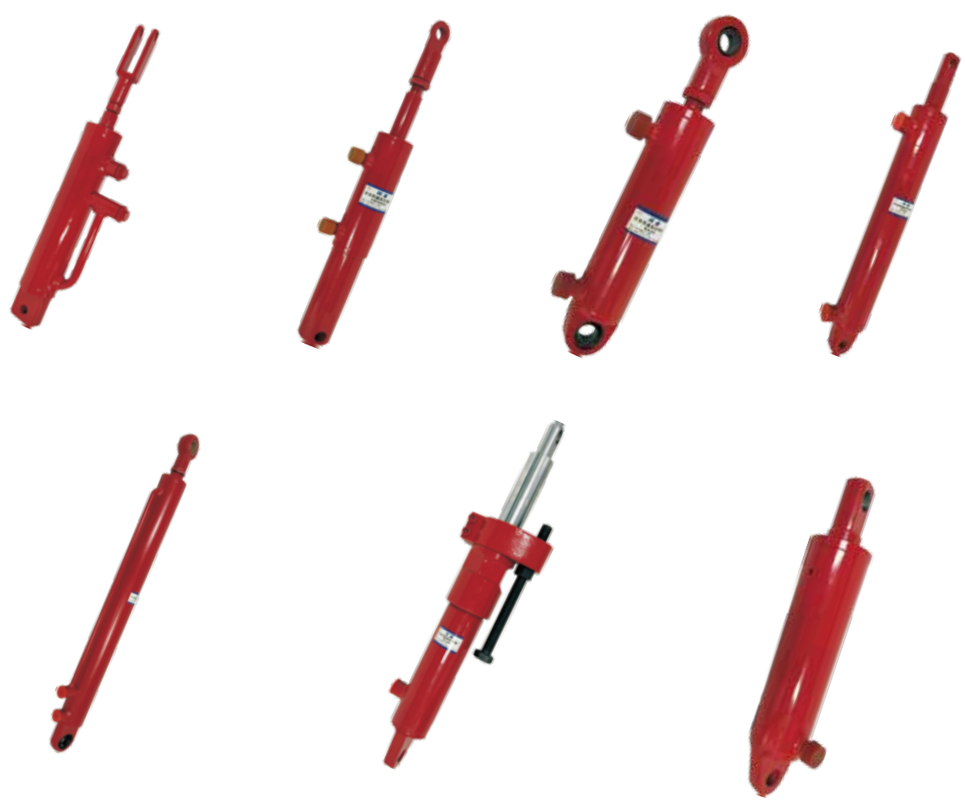

Leveraging in-house end-to-end production capabilities, we can quickly respond to personalized demands—whether it's small-batch OEM customization or flexible adjustments to product parameters, all can be efficiently implemented. This service advantage directly helps customers reduce procurement costs and shorten delivery cycles, effectively addressing industry challenges such as long customization periods and slow delivery times.

Adhering to the quality philosophy of "Integrity First, Innovation-Driven, and Consistent Satisfaction for Customers," we are committed to establishing long-term, stable partnerships with our clients, continually exceeding expectations, maximizing customer satisfaction, and striving to become your trusted hydraulic cylinder manufacturing and trading partner.
